Released 26 February 2006

Avation.Net Inc (a subsidiary company of Advent Air Limited, LSE: AAIR) has today announced its appointment to implement three new radio broadcast stations in Libya, North Africa.

The company's mandate is to provide the equipment, training and installation of the three new broadcast stations. These stations represent some of the first non-national government broadcasters to operate in the Great Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya (Libya).

The stations will be based in the municipal/administrative centres of Al-Marj and Darnah and in the Capitol city Tripoli. The Tripoli installation represents the Country's first ever commercial youth oriented broadcaster.

Total project value is USD423,000 with payment via cash and an irrevocable letter of credit. Work has begun on the projects at Al-Marj and Tripoli.

The completion of these projects may open the doors to other significant and larger opportunities in the North African market whilst solidifying Avation's position as a primary equipment supply company to African broadcasters.
